Business Council Releases Coffee Table Book “An American Mosaic”

A 250 Page Photographic Portrait of Fayetteville and Cumberland County

Today, the Cumberland County Business Council announced the release of a Fayetteville and Cumberland County pictorial book titled, An American Mosaic — A Photographic Portrait of Fayetteville and Cumberland County. The 250-page book features quality of life images of community residents and businesses showcasing everyday happenings of Cumberland County.

“It is an honor to show how Cumberland County’s citizens, geography, patriotism, and historical significance create an unmatched community of diversity and hometown pride,” said Gordon Rose, chairman of the Business Council. “I am delighted to present this photographic portrait of the Fayetteville area.”

Riverbend Books, a division of Bookhouse Group, Inc. of Atlanta published the book utilizing the expertise of community liaisons and freelance writers and photographers. Bookhouse Group, Inc. develops various types of tabletop books ranging from picture books on American communities to historical commentaries and art catalogs.

An American Mosaic describes the international cultures and people that enrich the Fayetteville area because of its proximity to Fort Bragg and Pope Air Force Base. The book celebrates the rich history of our military community, while honoring familiar attractions and the businesses that contribute to the county’s economy.

Copies of An American Mosaic may be purchased at the Business Council office at 201 Hay Street, 4th Floor.
